

On May 11, the Third Circuit Court of Appeals issued its decision in Chirba v. Univ. of Pa., reversing a district court decision that had dismissed the case.

The court reviewed the Supreme Court's decision in Wendell Smith v. Board of Directors of the Westchester County Board of Health, 138 S.Ct. 1104 (2018), which held that the Medicaid provisions at issue were enforceable.

The decision is extremely significant because it reverses a district court decision that had dismissed the case.
