

The Supreme Court has granted certiorari in City of Tabor v. United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners (No. 04-547), which involves a dispute over the interpretation of a collective bargaining agreement. The case arises from a lawsuit filed by the City of Tabor, Colorado, against the United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners (UBCJ) for breach of contract. The UBCJ had filed a motion for summary judgment, claiming that the City's actions were barred by the doctrine of sovereign immunity. The Supreme Court's decision in this case will have significant implications for the interpretation of collective bargaining agreements and the scope of sovereign immunity for municipalities.