

The Supreme Court has granted certiorari in City of Tabor v. United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners (No. 04-547), which involves a dispute over the interpretation of a collective bargaining agreement. The case arises from a lawsuit filed by the City of Tabor, Colorado, against the United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners (UBCJ) for breach of contract. The UBCJ had filed a lawsuit against the City of Tabor, claiming that the City had violated the terms of a collective bargaining agreement (CBA) by failing to pay the UBCJ the agreed-upon wages and benefits. The City of Tabor had argued that the CBA was not enforceable because it was not a contract. The Supreme Court granted certiorari to resolve the dispute over the enforceability of the CBA.
